

Enterprise Awareness Egg Drop Challenge

The Wibble

The RSPB have placed a tender for an organisation to make a device to enable the safe transportation of the endangered and somewhat strange Wibble. Wibbles are solitary flightless birds that live close to hedgerows in rural parts of the north coast of England.

The Challenge

In order to protect the Egg from smashing you have to make a device to ensure the egg is kept warm and is free from breaking if the egg is dropped from a height of shoulder length.

You have access to different resources to make your device. You have 10 minutes to make the device and then you will present and demonstrate your device to the rest of the group.
